

電子報二 西雅圖去哪玩！ If you are a little confused of where to visit in Seattle these are some of my favorite sites that you can check out!

1. Pike Place Market

This probably one of the most famous sites in Seattle. When you arrive in Seattle you will have tons of opportunities to explore this place. It is home to the notorious gum wall and the first Starbucks in the world. As a tourist though, we don't get to learn much about this site. That's why I strongly recommend taking a tip-based free walking tour. I learnt so many fun facts about the market. For example, the first Starbucks you visit there actually isn't the first Starbucks? Take this free tour and find out yourself!

Link: <http://seattlefreewalkingtours.org/>

(right: me)

2. Museum of Pop Culture (MoPop)

Usually, I'm not a big fan of museums but this museum is amazing! One of the best museums I have ever been to in my life probably because it's about pop culture which is much closer to our lives. Inside you can find exhibitions on Sci-Fi, Punk music, Horror, and much more. If your a big guitar fan, than you are in luck because there is a whole gallery of different kinds of guitars according to its history. This museum reminds me of all the magical things that has happened in my childhood.

3. Discovery Park

We went to discovery park on a sunny day by renting bikes. If you are those people who love beautiful scenery and a relaxing picnic on a sea of grass then this is the place to go. Discovery park is Seattle's largest park and is right by the shores of the Puget Sound. There are forests, beaches, and prairies there so it's a great place to escape to from the busy streets of Seattle. You can easily rent a bike in one of the bike shops near the campus and it's about a one and a half hour ride with some slight hills.

4. Fremont Sunday Market

There are a lot of other things to do in this small town Fremont other than the Fremont troll! On sundays, when the weather is nice go check out the Sunday market. There are many vendors that sell all kinds of weird and interesting stuff. It's a great place to dig out some souvenirs for friends! It's also a great time to try out some street food. Last time, there was a stall selling roasted cheese. It's a very popular place and the smell is somewhat pretty bad. Try it out if you can stand the odor!

