

I'm going to share everything I know and see in Poland on the first day. This is because it may be interesting. Before going to Poland, I was so anticipated to meet many people and doing some crazy things there. I was thinking that Poland is a very mysterious country in Europe. There must be something interesting there. Polish is a bit closed but nice to people. Warsaw is a beautiful city. You are going to fall in love with it. Yes! This is all that I heard before going there.

After I arrived at that Chopin airport, I hang around a bit the airport to see the environment here. I thought fine. Maybe this place is not like what I imagine it would be since it doesn't look so good. So I was trying to be positive to explore a new world. After picking up all my luggage, I went to take the train to the city center. When I was in the shuttle, I saw many people with sad faces. It kind of makes me feel depressed as well so I start talking to a stranger next to me. He seemed like a foreigner too. Anyway, we had a good conversation. Somehow talking to a stranger makes me feel wonderful. Then, I got off the train with my heavy luggage. I looked at the sky. It was so dark because of the weather. All of the building I saw is very traditional. To be honest, I was quite disappointed because Poland is not lovely at all from my point of view. The weird thing is that people are staring at me with their big eyes like I am not supposed to be here. Truth is that there are not so many Asians there so I was special for them(?) Thus, I try to convince myself that tomorrow will be another great day. I dragged my bag to my new dorm while it began raining. Seriously, the day couldn't be worse for me.

Since I got to my dorm, I have been thinking that do I make a good choice to come to Poland. I had no answer at that time. Then, I met my new roommates from Turkish in my new room. We lived in a double room. At that time, he seemed a decent person when he greeted me. Ya, maybe it was not that bad. After getting everything organized, I fell asleep. I believe tomorrow will be different. Yes, everything gets a lot better after the first day. I still don't regret making this choice.
