

The Design Capital – Copenhagen

Copenhagen is the design capital of the world. From my point of view, I think they really earned that name. Within the city of Copenhagen there are two design centers, museums that are 5 kilometer apart. Each museum has their own exhibition that changes from time to time. As for the most part while walking down the street, what can see a lot of design or concept stores on each block at least.

It is very hard not to own mechanized at each store has the wrong way of decorating the store. And even with the simplest material such as newspapers wave and sticks they can come up with the most brilliant design that you can probably never think of starting from two D to a three dimensional exhibition.

The Nordic people cares a lot of tension into lighting and Hot-List shoes shined through in their interior. You can never is C any direct lighting if the fixture is designed by Nordic designers. If you want to learn how to design it is not to learn from the book it is to learn by all the serving each detail that people spend time &energy while doing their design.

Sometimes design is pretty and humanity into something has to be seen and to be infected by other humans be ordered to link with their emotional and arouse their attention. This does not pass to be done in the great scale it can also be achieved to achieved by adding little were simple elements to brighten up the design work to make the callers interesting. In other words is adding something interesting for the eye to look at it to think instead of something that is planned in easy to analyze.

Interactions between the player the viewer and a designer plays an intricate role. Often designer has to think about we mentioned how to viewers are coming from and how to place the wall factor which brings the design interesting

This picture demonstrate how the designer creates the wow factor when the viewer speaks in fund the window of the entrance. That the world will be surprised to see the sculpture with a Rat head.
