

New Year's Eve in Copenhagen – a different kind of new year

As we all know it, New Year is a time when the whole city comes together for a huge party to celebrate for the new coming. And since the Danish people they tried to live their life as the first class, always, they celebrate it, wildly. (at least from my point of view)

December 31 there's fireworks everywhere in the city the fire works are made by regular civilians not by the public government. When you are walking down the alley, you get to see a lot of parents bring their kids playing fireworks. The fireworks are made by civilians instead of the public governments and this is the reason why you can see and hear fireworks .

This is a shot in front of Copenhagen City Hall. It is hard to see but there are a lot of people in front of the square. As you can see the fireworks are low air fireworks and they are set off by the people around the square. The fireworks starts around 8:00 and continues until 12:00 and that is when it gets the most exciting.

This is the picture of a guy having a champagne in his hand and with his friend the fireworks is in the background.

This is an illustration of how close the firework was. Sometimes the fireworks later explode in front of you or on the top of your head and it can get quite dangerous.

After deprived help the fireworks lots of people goes too expensive five star hotels for their new year party a regular new year party consist of drinks food and friends and dance floor. We went to dish that he wrote in Copenhagen which was while the more prestigious hotels in the region. I would actually recommend students to go to the center of the city instead of expensive hotels, since there will be more of the crowd of the same age.
