

Epaper2

The greatest part of having the exchange in Europe is you can travel around the Europe in a very low fare. Especially if you choose Netherlands, Germany or France, you are right in the middle of Europe (OK, they are actually Western Europe). You have plenty of budget airlines to choose. I personally ranked my top 2 cities or countries in the following 2 e-paper.

Top 1 city in my list: Budapest, Hungary

If you go to Hungary, make sure that don't exchange your Euro in the airport. You can just pick one of the currency exchange shop on the street. (Don't exchange your currency for any people asked you on the street, you may get the counterfeit money.) The spread of the exchange rate can up to 5%. Or you can just cash out the money from your saving account at any ATM if you already have an account in Netherlands.

In most of the big tourist cities, some private institutions provide you the "free" walking tour. Check the free walking tour information on the internet or ask your hostel staff. Actually the "free" should be change to "tips-based", because in the end of the walking tour, the guide will give you the conclusion about the city and give you the time to give him the tips if you want. Since it the tip-based tour, the guide is very dedicated to his job. In the end almost every people all satisfied the whole tour. The tour will introduce the history of the building, the myth part of the city and even the ghost corner and the best restaurant or club.

Photos from Budapest:

